AFFILIATED PROJECTS OF THE CBM

Karakallou Catalogue and Library Project, Mount Athos

The primary task of the More Karakallou Catalogue and Library Project is to make the holdings of the Karakallou Library more accessible. Besides rearranging the library’s holdings, we aim to underline the actuality of its ancient treasures. In this manner, the study of the NT and other Byzantine sources will be encouraged in its authentic environment, i.e. in the Monastery itself and in the liturgical life of the monastic community.

Catalogue of Slavic Manuscripts Project

The setting up of a parallel Catalogue of Slavic Manuscripts project is currently being explored with partners in St. Petersburg and Florence.

Catalogue of Byzantine Liturgical Manuscripts Project

A Catalogue of Byzantine Liturgical Manuscripts project is under preparation, together with partners in Greece (NWO Internationalisation).

Catalogue of Byzantine Old Testament Manuscripts Project

An exploration is underway to assess the feasibility of a Catalogue of Byzantine Psalterion Manuscripts project.

---

RESEARCH TEAM:

SUPERVISOR: Prof. dr. K. Spronk, Professor of Old Testament, Protestant Theological University, Kampen

CO-SUPERVISORS: Prof. dr. G.A.M. Rouwhorst, Professor of Liturgical Studies, Faculty of Catholic Theology of the University of Tilburg, Utrecht; Prof. dr. R. Roukema, Professor of New Testament Studies, Protestant Theological University, Kampen

RESEARCHERS: Dr. S.M. Royé (programme coordinator); Dr. S. Ovsiannikov; J. Lena M.A.

---

CBM INTERNATIONAL ADVISORY BOARD

Prof. A. Alexeev, Philological Faculty, State University of St Petersburg

Prof. ass. T. Antonopoulos, Philological Faculty, University of Athens

Fr. Prof. ass. S. Alexopoulos, Ecclesiastical Academy, Athens

Dr. W.G. Brokkaar (emer.), Faculty of Byzantine Studies, University of Amsterdam

Prof. ass. S. Engberg, MMB, University of Copenhagen

Prof. M. Garzaniti, Faculty of Letters and Philosophy, University of Florence

Prof. C. Hannick, Faculty of Slavic Studies, University of Würzburg

Dr. B. Janssens, Brepols Academic Publishers, Turnhout

Dr. E. Lamberz, Bavarian Academy of Sciences and Humanities, Munich

Prof. E. Litsas, Department of Archival and Library Sciences, Ionian University, Corfu

Prof. St. Parenti, Pontificio Ateneo S. Anselmo, Rome

Prof. D. Parker, Institute for Textual Scholarship and Electronic Editing, Birmingham

Prof. ass. F. A. Rentel, St. Vladimir’s Orthodox Theological Seminary, Crestwood, New York

Prof. U. Schmid, Institute for New Testament Textual Research, Münster

Das Septuaginta Unternehmen, Göttingen

Dr. D. Tzerpos, Liturgical Department of the Theological Faculty, University of Athens

---

The CBM is a programme of the Protestant Theological University Kampen-Utrecht-Leiden [PThU] and is funded by the Netherlands Organisation of Scientific Research [NWO]

---

Catalogue of Byzantine Manuscripts Programme

---

CBM
The CBM programme centres around the construction of a catalogue of Byzantine manuscripts, based on codico-liturgical criteria, the leading idea being that the codex forms of the Byzantine manuscripts - which accommodate biblical, patristic and liturgical texts – were determined by their liturgical function and the inherent purpose of the incorporated texts.

The catalogue will be accompanied by an assessment of the textual and hermeneutical implications of the codico-liturgical approach for Bible research.

Further to cataloguing the Byzantine NT codex forms, a start is also being made with the cataloguing of the Byzantine homiletic manuscripts, which are the most important source of biblical commentary in the Byzantine tradition and which throw remarkable light on the liturgical context of biblical commentary.

An interesting source for researchers is the Divine Liturgy of the Eastern Orthodox Churches, in which one finds that printed editions, still in use today, closely resemble the original manuscript forms. From here one can trace many of the factors that have contributed to forming the codices.

Byzantine manuscript research to date as represented in ‘specialised’ catalogues of NT, OT, homiletic or catena manuscripts, as well as in local library catalogues, provides us with a wealth of information on singular and composed codices and a generally detailed, albeit eclectic picture of the biblical, patristic, liturgical and other textual types contained therein. However, these catalogues do not provide us full insight into the actual content or form of the extant codices. In this programme a path of catalogue and codex research is being set out which we hope will do justice to the manuscripts in all their variety and diversity of form.

The codico-liturgical approach can redirect the study of the Byzantine manuscripts to a system of cataloguing that allows for a more inclusive picture of the state of affairs of the manuscripts’ forms, in which the biblical and other ecclesiastical texts were handed down to us. This implies a thorough assessment of existing categorization systems and a reclassification according to codico-liturgical criteria.

At the same time this also implies new hermeneutical and textual implications for biblical research. Thus the CBM programme combines Byzantine catalogue studies and codicology, with biblical hermeneutics and liturgical and patristic studies.

The CBM programme functions as an academic platform where scholars from different disciplines and regions of Europe and beyond can explore and approach each other’s research traditions on the basis of a shared interest in the Byzantine manuscripts. New gateways to this important group of primary sources are thus being formed.